

GEOLOG Donates to Alaska Resource Education at the ARE 3rd Annual Charity Sporting Clays Event

GEOLOG Alaska recently made a donation to Alaska Resource Education non-profit foundation during ARE's 3rd Annual Charity Sporting Clays Event at Birchwood Recreation and Shooting Park in Chugiak, Alaska. This is the third charity event hosted by ARE since 2021, and it drew over 150 businesses, community, and non-profit organization leaders together to get out and enjoy a sunny day of Sporting Clays in support of this worthy cause.

Sponsors for this traditional event represented a wide range of energy, mining and other resource development and support companies in Alaska, and 32 organizations provided generous sponsorships for this annual charity event. ConocoPhillips Alaska, Hilcorp, Santos and Alaska Airlines were just a few of the prominent sponsors.

At the conclusion of the event, Jim Carson presented a check for $1,000 to Ella Ede, Executive Director for ARE. Jim shared GEOLOG's long-standing commitment to support programs and charities that promote youth well-being and education around the world, and that we are honored to be able to help ARE in Alaska.

Alaska Resource Education's mission is to educate students about Alaska's resources. ARE provides statewide educational opportunities to students and teachers and distributes a primary education curriculum that meets Alaska State Science Standards and has been aligned with the common core in English, language arts and STEM.

Founded in 1982, ARE is funded through the state, corporate and individual donations. The 501(c)(3) educational nonprofit is a partnership between the State of Alaska Department of Education and private companies engaged in the resource industry.

GEOLOG is proud to support Alaska Resource Education, and we look forward to advancing the understanding and importance of responsible resource development in Alaska for our local youth.
